VITAMIN

01

On January 13, market sources reported that Zhejiang Medicine Co., Ltd. raised its feed-grade vitamin E quotation to USD 9.2/KG.

In addition, China's Ministry of Agriculture and Rural Affairs approved "cholesterol (derived from lanolin)" jointly submitted by Zhejiang Garden Biopharmaceutical Co., Ltd. and its wholly owned subsidiary Zhejiang Garden Nutrition Co., Ltd. as a new feed additive, issuing the corresponding certificate on January 12, 2026 (Announcement No. 982).

AMINO ACID

02

The lysine market remained relatively stable, with prices hovering at historical lows and some producers operating at a loss. Capacity at second- and third-tier plants has yet to recover. Earlier downstream restocking led to strong order intake and tight delivery schedules, while recent USD exchange rate movements provided slight upward price support.

API

03

An environmental impact assessment approval was recently announced for Zhejiang Langhua Pharmaceutical Co., Ltd.'s capacity expansion project covering five APIs, including LHS0075, with a total designed capacity of 170 tons. The project, with an investment of approximately USD 32.71 million, will be implemented within the existing site. Upon full operation, it is expected to generate annual output value of USD 205.17 million and annual profits and taxes of around USD 71.74 million, while phasing out several low-efficiency or under-construction API capacities.

FOOD ADDITIVE

04

- Ningbo Excare Pharm Inc.'s IPO application was recently accepted by the Beijing Stock Exchange, with a proposed issuance of up to 20 million shares. The company focuses on dietary supplement ingredients, including plant extracts and nutritional fortifiers, serving the global health and nutrition market with multiple international certifications.
- Meanwhile, under Announcement No. 982 released on January 6, 2026, China's Ministry of Agriculture and Rural Affairs approved seven new feed additives, including sucralose independently submitted by Anhui Jinhe Industrial Co., Ltd., marking the company's first entry into the feed additive sector and expanding sweetener options for feed applications.
